

An aerial photograph showing a multi-lane highway running parallel to a large body of water, likely a wetland or estuary. The water is dark and textured with patches of green vegetation. To the right of the highway is a residential neighborhood with many houses with reddish-brown roofs, surrounded by trees and greenery. The sky is blue with some light clouds.

Where is Roary...?

What is Resilience?

An aerial photograph of a river delta, showing a complex network of channels and distributaries. The water is a deep brown color, contrasting with the lighter, silty banks. The overall pattern is intricate and organic, resembling a tree or a web. The text "What is Our Initiative?" is overlaid in the center in a white, serif font.
